

For over 50 years, USAID has supported and complemented the efforts of the people, civil society, the private sector, and the government of Colombia to promote social and economic development in the country, address the challenges of protracted violence, and facilitate the establishment of civil government institutions in previously isolated and underserved regions.

We work with Colombia on the following lines of action:

① DEVELOPMENT & ECONOMIC PROSPERITY

We promote licit economies, particularly in agriculture, by enhancing productivity, expanding market access, and providing financial solutions to local producers.

② ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

We work to address the natural threats of climate change, protect Colombia's ecosystems and biodiversity, and promote climate adaptation and sustainable environmental conservation.

③ INCLUSIVE GOVERNANCE

We improve the living conditions of marginalized populations by promoting their inclusion, diversity, and participation in government institutions.

We work with civil society and the Colombian government to promote human rights, facilitate access to justice and social services in conflict-affected areas, and advocate for transparency toward a peaceful future.

④ HUMAN RIGHTS, JUSTICE, AND PEACE

⑤ MIGRATION RESPONSE

We work with the national, municipal, and departmental governments to address the social, political, and economic challenges of mass migration from Venezuela. This involves enhancing border and migration management capacities and strengthening institutional capacity to provide migrant populations with access to social and justice services, all while working to reduce xenophobia.

⑥ HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE

We engage in prevention, early response and recovery efforts in disasters, assistance to conflict victims, and support for migrant populations with health care, water supply, food aid, protection, and shelter.
